DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Butterbaugh et al. (US 6,061,240, hereinafter, Butterbaugh.)

In regard to claim 1, in figs. 1-5, Butterbaugh discloses a mounting structure of a ball grid array type IC comprising:

resin guide ribs 46 (or a pin) provided on opposite sides of a body portion of the ball grid array type IC 16;

engaging pawls 58 formed at distal ends of the guide ribs so as to be locked into locking holes of a board 14; springs 48 in which the guide ribs are inserted respectively; and height adjusting ribs provided at places slightly inwardly distant from the guide ribs respectively so as to protrude from the body portion;

wherein the springs prevent the ball grid array type IC from being strongly pressed against the board when the ball grid array type IC is mounted on the board; and the height adjusting ribs adjust the ball grid array type IC to a predetermined height relative to the board.

In regard to claim 2, Butterbaugh further discloses elastic bodies 64 prevent the BGA IC from being pressed against the board (col. 5, lines 9-15.)

In regard to claim 3, the height adjusting ribs integrally formed on sides of the guide ribs respectively, fig. 1.

In regard to claim 4, Butterbaugh further discloses elastic bodies are made of elastic, for example, plastic material (col. 5, lines 1-8.)

In regard to claims 5-7, Butterbaugh further discloses a plurality of solder balls 30 provided on a bottom surface of a body portion of the ball grid array type the ball grid array type IC on a board;

wherein a pair of anti-rubbing pins 46 to be fitted into insertion holes provided in the board are provided on diagonal corners of the bottom surface of the body portion respectively so as to protrude downward (fig. 1).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claim 8 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Butterbaugh as applied to claims 1-7 above.

In regard to claim 8, Butterbaugh discloses all of the claimed limitations as mentioned above, except the pin is a shape like square in section.

Art Unit: 2814

At the time of the invention was made, it would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art to modify the pin with a square shape because applicant has not disclosed that this shape provides an advantage, is used for a particular purpose, or solves a stated problem. One of ordinary skill in the art, furthermore, would have expected applicant's invention to perform equally well with either shape because they perform the same function of positioning the module to the substrate.

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to modify Butterbaugh to obtain the invention as specify in the above claims.

Indeed, it has been held that mere dimensional limitations are prima facie obvious absent a disclosure that the limitations are for a particular unobvious purpose, produce an unexpected result, or are otherwise critical. See, for example, In re Rose, 220 F.2d 459, 105 USPQ 237 (CCPA 1955); In re Rinehart, 531 F.2d 1048, 189 USPQ 143 (CCPA 1976); Gardner v. TEC Systems, Inc., 725 F.2d 1338, 220 USPQ 777 (Fed. Cir. 1984), cert. denied, 469 U.S. 830, 225 USPQ 232 (1984); In re Dailey, 357 F.2d 669, 149 USPQ 47 (CCPA 1966).

Note that the specification contains no disclosure of either the critical nature of the claimed dimensions of any unexpected results arising therefrom. Where patentability is aid to be based upon particular chosen dimensions or upon another variable recited in a claim, the Applicant must show that the chosen dimensions are critical. In re Woodruff, 919 F.2d 1575, 1578, 16 USPQ2d 1934, 1936 (Fed. Cir. 1990).
